THE MORRISTOWN PHYSICIANS INSTITUTE.—The Morristsown Physicians Institute, New Jersey, U.S.A., has been established for the treatment of metabolic disorders, especially diabetes, obesity, Bright's disease, and high blood pressure. The purposes of the Institute are to treat patients, and to study the problems of diabetes, obesity, and hypertension. The Institute seeks to find suitable treatments for patients whatever may be their financial circumstances. Morristsown is situated about 600 ft. above sea-level; the district is noted for its beauty and climate, and the latter being healthy and agreeable all the year round. There is an excellent train service to New York City by the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad. The site of the Institute is a former large private estate comprising about 200 acres of woodland, lawns, gardens, and farmland. The buildings are surrounded by a beautiful park, including at one end of the property, commanding views of great charm. A private lake, an 18-hole golf course, tennis and squash-rackets courts, &c., are included in the grounds. The diet kitchen and laboratories are completely equipped and organised for study of each individual case; patients are expected to cooperate seriously with their treatment, and to adhere rigidly to the rules laid down for them.

For well-to-do patients the Institute is said to offer the advantages of a private sanatorium; 100 poor patients are received on proper recommendation, and can obtain treatment at lower rates or free, or when able may perform some kind of work for part payment. Scientific research is one of the main aims of the Institute; over 500,000 persons in the United States today have diabetes, and the numbers of those suffering from arterio-sclerosis, kidney disease, and high blood pressure are much greater. The principal appeal for funds, which are urgently needed to support and extend both the scientific and philanthropic sides of the work, is made to the patients themselves and to their relatives and friends.
